Soccer Field Size and Lines

By Joshua Robinson

Updated March 24, 2018

There are very few fixed dimensions for soccer fields, even at the highest level. The sport's world governing body, FIFA, only stipulates that for professional 11-versus-11 competition, they must be between 100 yards and 130 yards and the width between 50 and 100 yards.

For years, English fields were known to be on the smaller side, making the game more physical, while fields in South American stadiums tend to sprawl out and offer players more space and time on the ball. Still, some elements remain constant on full-size fields throughout the world.

The Penalty Area

This is the portion of the field where the goalkeeper may use his hands and fouls are punished by a penalty kick. It includes the penalty spot (12 yards from the goal) and the 6-yard box (a rectangle with the top side 6 yards away from the goal). The top of the box features a small arc commonly known as "the D." A portion of a circle that has a radius of 10 yards with the penalty spot for a center, it serves no purpose within the rules of the game and is merely a guide for players, much like the six-yard box.

The Goal

Full-sized goals are 8 feet tall and 24 feet wide, no matter where you go.

The Halfway Line

This divides the field in half with a spot in the middle for kickoff. Players may not cross it from their side until kickoff has been taken. In the middle, it also has a 10-yard circle. During the kickoff, only the two players taking it may stand inside it.

The Touchline

The touchline is a white chalk line that defines the perimeter of the field. If the ball goes out on either of the long sides, it is put back into play with a throw. If it goes out along one of the goal lines, however, the referee will award either a goal kick or a corner kick, depending on which team touched the ball last.

The Field

The sport is only called soccer in the United States and Canada. Elsewhere, it is called association football, and the soccer field is called a football pitch or football field. The pitch is made of grass or an artificial turf, but it is not unusual throughout the world for recreational and other amateur teams to play on dirt fields.

Youth Soccer Fields

US Youth Soccer recommends standard size fields based on FIFA guidelines for players age 14 and older. For younger players, the sizes are smaller.

For ages 8 and younger:

Goal: 4 by 6 feet

Field: 15-20 yards wide and 25-35 yards long

For ages 9-10:

Goal: 6 by 18 or 6 by 12 feet

Field: 35-45 yards wide and 55-65 yards long

For ages 12-13:

Goal: 6 by 18 or 7 by 21 yards

Field: 45-55 yards wide and 70-80 yards long
